What is it?

It's a class for students in grades 4-6 that presents a practical, biblical view on our bodies, the changes they go through, and the relationship God intended for husbands and wives.

How Does It Work?

Students receive a notebook with materials that will be covered in the course and can be used for future reference. They begin in a general session with boys and girls together, then separate for classes that cover gender-specific information.

Toward the end of this session, students are given information on sexual intercourse. (This is optional and parents can elect for their children not to participate in this section, if desired.)

Students return at the end of the session for a Christian perspective on the stewardship of our bodies and God's desire and purpose for marriage.
